To the FCC:

I find it disconcerting that influential members of organized media can alter the freedom afforded us through the Constitution by entangling the meaning of FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS to suit their own desires, and even more so that they have an audience with those in decision-making positions in our government.

Listen to me, go back and re-read the Constitution and the spirit in the meaning of the text and then ask yourselves if meddling with interpretation of an historic foundation of our country is a noble thing in the best interest of the greater number of our citizens or looking out for the interests of a very small minority of said citizens.
